No Use Trying to Court a Whole

Family. "I don't want to make any trouble, but there is one man in this city who ought to be gibbeted!" began a blunt spoken woman of 45 as she stood before the officials of the Twentieth street station, in Detroit, a day or two ago. When they inquired the particulars she hacded out a letter and said:

"Observe the envelope. That letter is addressed to me. You will see that the writer calls me his jessamine, and he wants me to ses an early day for the wedding."

When the captain had finished the letter she was ready with another, adding.
"And this is addressed to my daughter Lucretia. You will see that he calls her his rosy angel, and he says he can't live if she doesn't marry bim. It's the same man.'

So it was, and his letter was as tender as spring chicken. That finished, she handed out a third, with the remark : "This is directed to my daughter Helen. It's the very same man, and in it he calls her his pat z:, and he says he dreams of her."

"Why, he seemed to love the whole family,' remarked the captain.
"That's just it. I'm a widow with two daughters, and he was courting us all at once and engaged to the three of us at the same time. Oh, what wretches there are in this world !'

'Yes, indeed. It's lucky you found him

Yee, it is. If I hadn't he might have marhadn't opened one of my letters, and if I hadn't searched the girls' pockets while they were asleep, we'd have thought him an innocent lamb.

"And do you want him arrested?" "No, I guess not, but I want this matter to go into the papers as a warning to other women. Just think of his sitting up with me Sunday night. Lucretia on Wednesday night and Helen on Friday night, and calling each one of us his climbing rose! Oh! sir, the women ought to know what a deceiving animal man is!"

"Yes, he's pretty tough." "It has learned me a lesson," she said as she was ready to go. "The next man that comes sparking around my house has got to come right out and say which he's after. If it's the girls I won't say nothing, and if its me it won't do 'em a bit of good to slam things around and twit me of burying two husbands!

Torture of Criminals in France. The sickening accounts of the toctures inflicted on the French convicts, political or otherwise, exputriated to New Caledonia, affords, in one particular, a remarkable proof of what may be termed the conservation of cruelty. Flogging, it was stated in evidence before the Committee of lequiry, was frequently inflicted with great violence and on very slight provocation. Now, floggieg, it has been repeatedly asserted by the opponents of corporal punishment, has long since been abolished in France, both for civil and tor military offenses. Prior to the first revolution, the cat o'nine tails, or, rather of twelve tails, the invention of the French General, Martinet, whose name in France has come down to posterity in conjunction with the instrument of torture which he invented, was extensively used in the French army: but its application was prohibited by a sensi tively humane convention when the Reign of Terror was at its height. Jean Jacques Rous seau did realy succeed in banishing the rod from French cohools; but in the navy the cat, or "gareette," lingered until 1648, when naval flogging, and the punishment of keel hauling to boot, was abloished by a decree of the Provisional Government of February. On the other hand, merciless flagellation has never ceased to prevail in the French bagnes or convict prisous. The wretched exiles in Naw Caledonia are scourged with an instrument precisely similar to that with which the "Forcat pour la F.i." the French Huguenots sent to the galleys by Mme. De Maintenon and Pere la Chaise at the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, were tortured. This implement of flagellation was and is a thick cord, strongly twisted, attached to a short handle, and with its lash rendered additionally hard by being closely tarred. The punishment is traditionally known as "la bastonnade," or bastinado, for the resson that in the old times there were always a large number of Turkish prisoners in the galleys at Toulon and Marseilles, and a Turkish convict, assumed to be an adept in the art of castigation in the Ottoman fashion, was selected to flig the unfortunate Huguacoia. Occasionally, a cowhide, resembling the Turkish "kourbash," was substituted for the terred rope. In the old French bagnes, when there were no more Turkish prisoners to act as lictors, the strongest, wick edest, and most ferocious among the convicts were appointed to act as executioners .- Lon don Telegraph. REV. DR. MCANALLY, of the St. Louis Obristian Advocate, being annoyed by the failure of his subscribers to come to time, like Mr. Silas Wegg, dropped into poetry, and the resul: proved that there was money in it. His production ran as follows:

> Tell me, ye angelie host, Ye ministers of love, Can suffering printers here below, Have no redress above?

The angel band replied: 'To us is knowledge given, Delinquents on the printer's books Can never enter heaven.'
